COMPUTING TODAY 65
Handheld micros.

MUSIC-MAKING MICROS 77
This is a tuneful diversion for those who own a System 80 or TRS80.

TWO-FINGER EXERCISE
— REVIEW OF THE CASIO FX-702P 84
Although they've sometimes been dismissed as mere toys, an overseas computer magazine recently claimed that pocket computers are in fact the new wave in computer technology. Some are in fact as powerful as third generation standard computers. We review Casio's latest offering in this field, the FX-702P.

TOUCHED BY TOUCH TYPING 88
This program takes an original listing published in the July 1981 issue and converts it very simply into a touch-typing tutor.

INTERFACING WITH THE ETI-685 92
In this second part of the series, Ron Koenig describes how to make use of the flexible interfacing provided on this board, which employs the 8255 PPI chip.

'660 SOFTWARE 96
Addition problems — this program constructs simple addition problems using two randomly chosen numbers between 0 and 127.

SOFTWARE FOR THE TRS80 COLOUR COMPUTER 101
So much software has been released for the TRS80 colour computer that a beginner would be understandably confused by it all — as would many more advanced users. Greg Wilson gives a rundown on the software situation.

CITY IN PERIL 109
In this game for the ZX80 (1K) it's up to you to save the city from annihilation by alien missiles.

NAKAMICHI'S COMPUTING TURNTABLE 124
No matter what shape your record's in, the new Nakamichi TX-1000 turntable computes the error and compensates!

SANYO RD-XM1 MICROCASSETTE DECK 132
Just as the compact cassette took over from the reel-to-reel in the sixties, so it is predicted that the microcassette will be the barnstormer in the tape market in the eighties. Louis Challis reviews Sanyo's RD-MX1 microcassette deck.

KEF 105 LOUDSPEAKERS 138
After testing the KEF 105 Series II loudspeakers, Louis Challis rated them as "almost indistinguishable... from our reference monitors" and as displaying characteristics "bordering on the superlative". Wow!

general

SHORT CIRCUITS 40
Symmetric multivibrator using two inverting gates.

LAB NOTES 45
Electronic switching using the 4066B.

IDEAS FOR EXPERIMENTERS 51
Idea of the Month contest and first winner — a cold start booster; Simple method for pc board design; etc.

SHOPAROUND 60

ELECTRONICS BOOKS FROM ETI 62
Beginners' books, data books, circuit books, etc.

TRS80 COLOUR COMPUTER
Review held over due to lack of space — this machine has so many interesting aspects from both the user and design point of view that it required more space than was possible in this issue. One not to be missed!

TAPE RECORDER TECHNOLOGY
Brian Dance throws some light on the technology and techniques employed in modern audio tape recorders — both reel-to-reel and cassette. See where the state of the art is at.

LOW-COST KEYBOARD
Build yourself a fully-encoded ASCII keyboard with 59 keys that can be interfaced to any of our computer projects or to any computer with the appropriate input port — for around $130.

DRUM MACHINE
An electronic percussion synthesiser that may be played manually or 'automatically' with an in-built sequencer. Synthesises drums, cymbals, snares and bongos.

CIRCUIT FILE
A new technical series, but each article complete in itself, covering applications of fundamental circuit techniques, device applications and design information. Circuit File is written by correspondent Ray Marston, who has provided so many popular Lab Notes features. Circuit File kicks off with power supplies and regulators.

Although these articles are in an advanced state of preparation, circumstances may affect the final content. However, we will make every attempt to include all features mentioned here.
